How the Metamorphosis of Living Apartments Over a Bar into Legal Rooms for Guests' Accommodation is Effected.

New York City has more hotels than had Chicago during the World's Fair. Carpenters are busy all over the city converting "living rooms" and "apartments" over saloons into hotel rooms and suites. The transformation began when the Raines Liquor Tax law became operative, and since that time the following saloons have been licensed as hotels, having ten or more rooms for the accommodation of guests:

Applications of fifty-one saloon keepers for hotel licenses are now pending before the Excise Board.
In many instances the inspectors have been satisfied with an expression of the proprietor's intention to change his saloon and living quarters into a hotel.
